Sadaghiani match and chipboard factory, Tabriz. The photo was taken from the Tabriz--Azarshahr road, looking east. The factory was built about five years ago and is the most modern in Tabriz.

Tabriz railroad station opened in December, 1965. The photo looks west along the track-side of the station.

Railroad station at Sofian, first stop on the Tabriz to Julfa line where a cement plant is soon to be built. The photo looks southeast toward Tabriz. The station opened about two years ago; general construction and style are typical of all new stations recently built on the Tabriz--Sofian--Sharef--Khaneh line.

New drydock facility and AID-financed freight barge "SAHAND" (200 ton capacity) nearing completion at Sharef-Khaneh on the northern edge of Lake Rezaieh.

View of the railroad termination point at the port of Sharef-Khaneh and the rail extension onto the jetty, looking south toward Lake Rezaieh.
